Precariousness and educational inequality

- Cultural values and norms (not just financial barriers)
- Sense of dislocation from the university (education for haves)

'I found myself at a university. UCC, and that is really... for rich folks and for middle class people. I felt as if even the walls were saying "you do not belong here".'

Teresa (Breaking the Barriers)

Precarious Dislocation

When I was at UCC in the beginning, I expected a gentle tap on my shoulder and someone saying "You are the wrong person to be here"

Frances (Breaking the Barriers)

Precarious Dislocation

The feeling is that education is not for me...
UCC or CIT is not on the minds of the kids who live here... there is still a huge class divide

Teresa (Breaking the Barriers)

Models of Community-University engagement

- Moral responsibility to recognise and respond to education precariousness.
- Importance of identifying as 'we' with the university.
- But people with precarious relationships to education are not addressed by the university.
- Connection needs to occur at varying points throughout the experience of education if participation in university education is to be established or maintained.
 - Harwood et al, 2013: 26

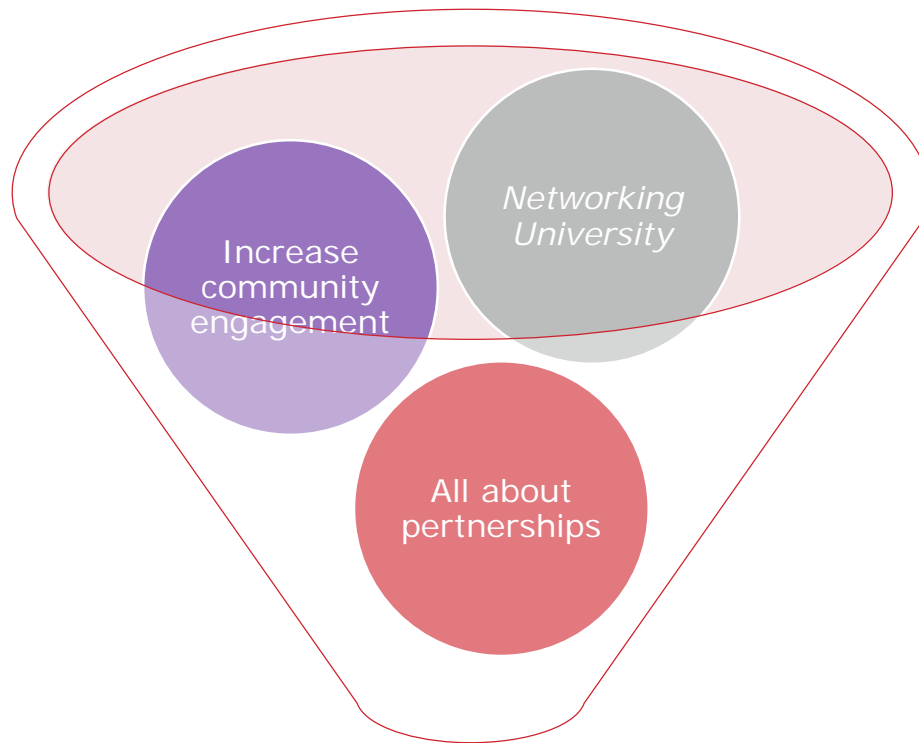

Education and precariousness

... education aims to provide time and space for the precarious existence of this world and to preserve its indeterminacy

- Vandenabeele, Reyskens and Wildemeersch (2011) p204
- It is not about solving precariousness
- It is about being useful in a precarious context

ACE's Community Mission

Key Community Projects

- Learning Neighbourhoods – Cork City
- Weave Project – Kerry County Council
- Adult & Community programmes

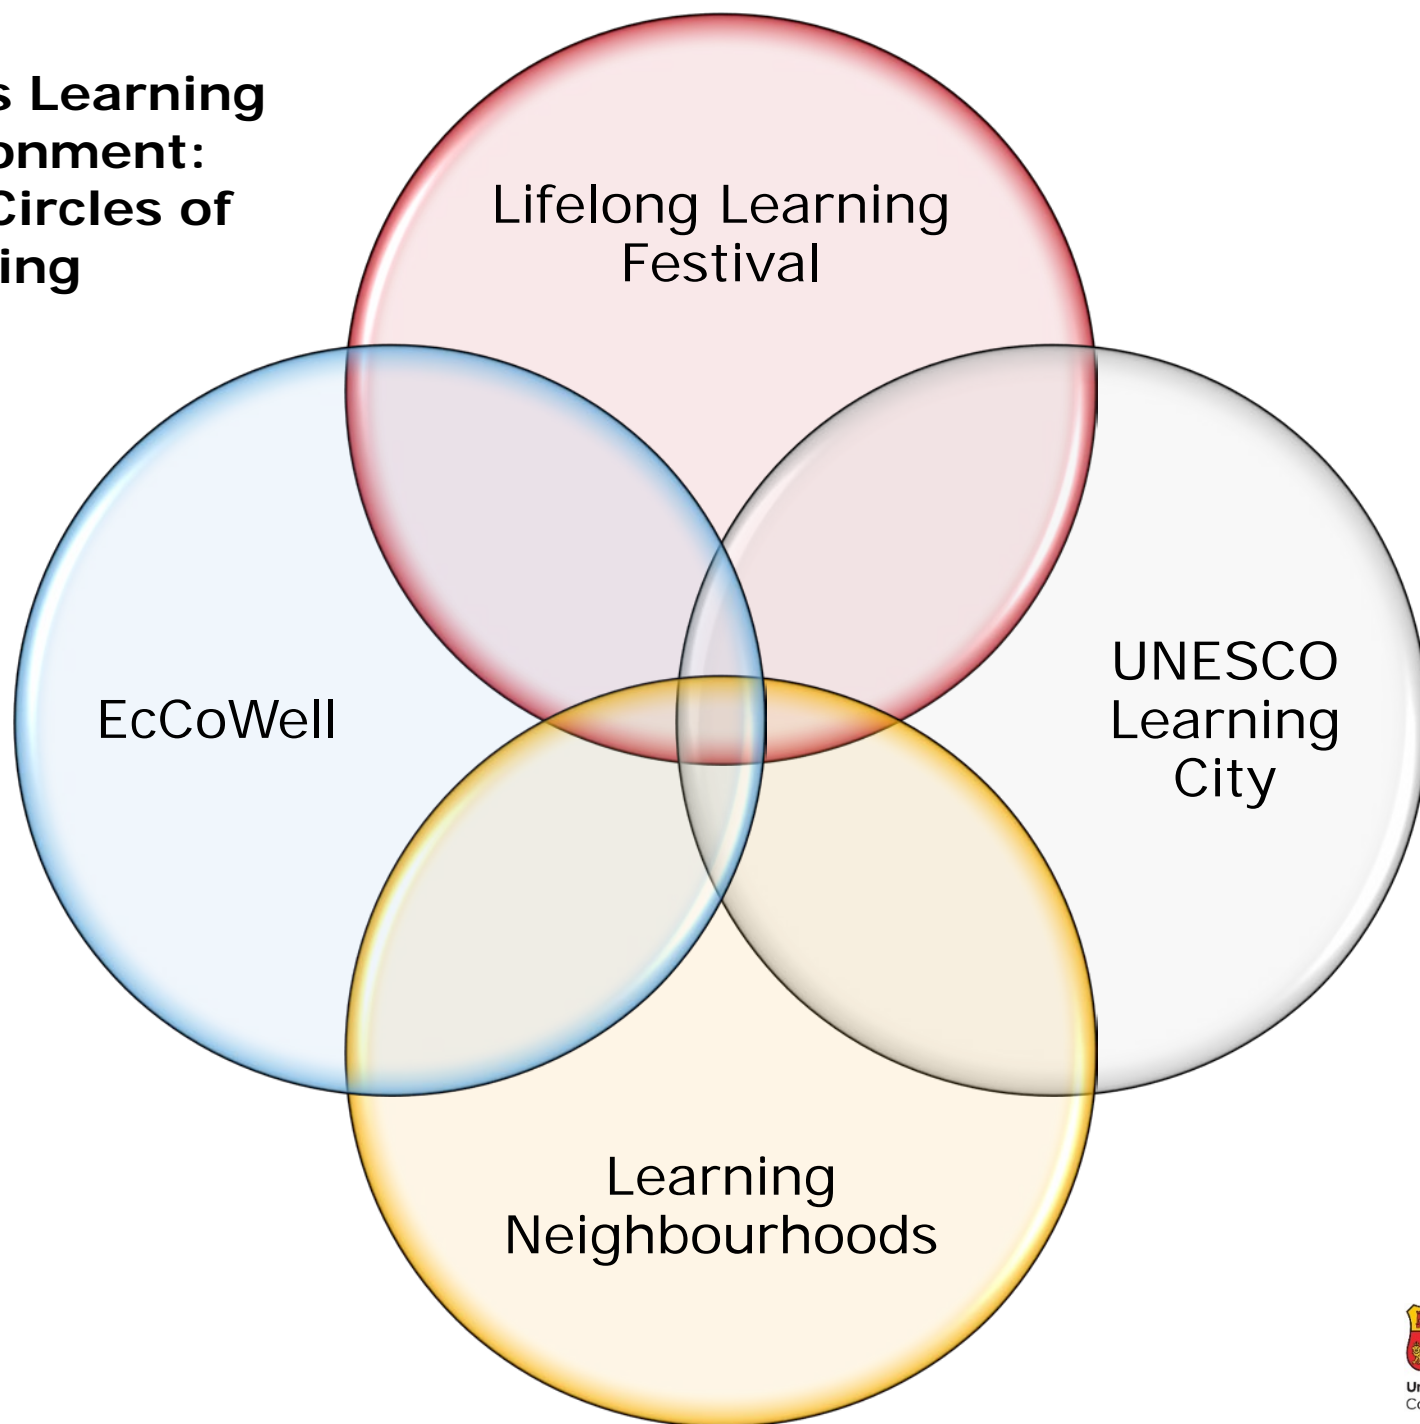

Collaborative Culture

- Enable people to work with and demand something of the university
- Partnership model between university and community
- Community identify its own needs in dialogue with university and other educational providers
- Identify educational needs throughout the life cycle
- Intrinsic values of learning – not just about jobs
- Work orientation adopt 'Reflexive Activation' approach

Cork's Learning
Environment:
Four Circles of Learning

Design of Learning Neighbourhoods

- Collaboration key
- Public engagement in both neighbourhoods.
- Coordinating groups, members from community stakeholders
- Agenda shaped by regular local meetings.
- Drew on approach of Cork Lifelong Learning Festival.

LEARNING Neighbourhood

A Learning Neighbourhood is an area that has an ongoing commitment to learning, providing inclusive and diverse learning opportunities for whole communities through partnership and collaboration.

Neighbourhood Activities

- Supporting and promoting ongoing neighbourhood learning and events
- Networking and connecting groups
- New initiatives:
 - 25+ UCC Neighbourhood workshops with academics from across university
 - Learning Neighbourhoods talks and events at the Lifelong Learning Festival, April 2016
 - Ballyphehane Open Morning
 - Faces of Learning Poster Campaign
 - Knocknaheeny STEAM Education

UCC Neighbourhood Lectures

Learning Neighbourhoods Cork

March 14 · 🌐

Tomorrow in the Torytop Ballyphehane Cork City Libraries, Learning Neighbourhoods Cork will be hosting Pat O'Leary's "Introduction to Mindfulness" from 11am. All welcome to attend. "Practicing mindfulness helps us to wake up to our lives, to what is happening in this moment, with an attitude of kindness towards ourselves and our experience".

Learning Neighbourhoods Cork shared their photo.

April 22 · 🌐

How can the emerging model contribute to the universities community engagement?

- Enhance the links and partnership between university and communities
- Bottom up rather than top down
- Develop new initiatives and collaborations
- Promote and showcase lifelong learning and celebrate and award good practice
