LitSciMed 2016

Preparation

Day 1: For Jerome de Groot's Session on Careers

Please be prepared to talk for two minutes about your career to date.

You might want to talk about the following: how your career has progressed; what you would like to know more about; how you think this event might help; how you have networked; anything that has been particularly helpful; what would you like to achieve in the next five years; how you would like your career to develop.

Please also read the brief delegate biographies on the LitSciMed website: <http://www.litscimed.org.uk>.

Day 1: For Andrew Lacey's/Jo Taylor's Session on RA Posts

Please read the 'Particulars of Appointment' document (attached to Andrew Lacey's email of Tuesday 16 February).

Day 2: For Alice Jenkins's Session on Research Grants

To make the workshop as hands-on as possible, please prepare a grant application for a project of your own and send it to alice.jenkins@gla.ac.uk by Monday 21 March.

Attached to Andrew Lacey's e-mail of Tuesday 16 February are the Guidance Notes for the Carnegie Trust's Research Incentives scheme and the application form in Word format. The Carnegie Trust grants are only available to applicants in Scottish HEIs, but their scheme has been selected because while the form requires applicants to think carefully about most of the standard elements of a grant application, it doesn't ask for information on impact. Impact is being addressed in a separate workshop at the LitSciMed event, and it makes the job of assessing the research projects easier if impact is set to one side.

Please devise a project for which you would like to apply for funding (bearing in mind the maximum and minimum levels of award under this grant scheme). It should be something that really is on your current or near-future research agenda. Ignore questions of your own eligibility to apply for this scheme, and fill in the form as if it were a real application. Ignore the section on Institutional Approval, but please complete the Budget section. Please send the completed application to alice.jenkins@gla.ac.uk by 21 March. Alice will assume that you're willing for her to share with the group anything you include on the form. During the session, examples from the completed forms will be used to inform the discussion of tactics for successful grant capture and ways of building on that success.

Any questions should be sent to the above e-mail address.

Day 2: For Martin Willis's Session on Publications

For those delegates who have submitted an article or book proposal, please take a moment to look over the responses/peer reviews you received and identify the keynotes of those.

Day 2: For Simon Bainbridge's/Sharon Ruston's Session on Impact and Working With Non-HEIs

Please think about: whether you have done any kind of impact activities already; what kinds of impact you think your work could have; and whether there is any specific organisation you would particularly like to work with.
