

Dear Scientist,

You are kindly invited to the 5th annual Northern Postdoctoral Researcher Meeting (NPRM5), which is this year taking place in Lancaster University on the 5th of July.

The NPRMs are free events aiming at providing a friendly setting for members of Northern UK universities to share their passion. The theme of this year's meeting is the Periodic Table, as 2019 marks the 150th anniversary of its creation. In this regard, presenters are invited to present their work revolving around any of the elements or sets of elements. Very varied research areas are expected, so we encourage you to present your research in a suitable format for a general chemistry audience.

Details of the event such as program and venue will follow closer to the date.

Thank you for registering your interest by sending the following form to northernpostdocmeeting@gmail.com

See our website for the deadlines regarding talk, poster and simple attendance registration. <http://wp.lancs.ac.uk/nprm5/>

Full name:

University:

Department:

Position: Postdoc/senior PhD student

Wish to present*: talk / poster / none

Principal element(s) involved:

Dietary requirements:

Do you agree for your name and affiliation to be included in the abstract book?

*Postdocs are invited to apply to present a talk or poster.

*Senior PhD students are invited to present posters.